Ten students at Broadway Middle School and their Adviser/School Counselor, Kimberly Webster, will attend the Leadership Experience and Development (LEAD) Conference held Feb. 5-7 in Washington, D.C.

The BMS students are all members of the National Junior Honor Society. They are among 800 student leaders from across the country who will attend workshops on improving leadership skills, problem solving, project planning, fundraising, team-building, idea-sharing and networking.

Webster will participate in professional development sessions led by experienced advisers and nationally known speakers and presenters.

The LEAD Conference is a program of the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP), which administers the National Honor Society™, the National Junior Honor Society™, and the National Association of Student Councils™.

“The LEAD Conferences offer talented young people from across the country the opportunity to sharpen their leadership skills in order to make a difference in their schools and communities,” said Dr. Gerald N. Tirozzi, executive director of the NASSP.
