SHS students trying to provide holiday meals for needy families

Students in Mrs. Jones' service learning class at Southside High School are holding a community food drive from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12 in Southside High School's main lobby.

The students' goal is to provide 40 needy families with a hot holiday meal. Therefore, they are seeking non-perishable items such as boxed stuffing, instant mashed potatoes, canned vegetables, canned cranberry sauce and biscuits.

Service Learning Through Health Education is an elective health course for students that focuses on awareness, advocacy and action. Each student explores several health awareness topics and ties his or her learning to an event taking place in the school or community.
